Read aloud with my 5th grade daughter while she was studying early US settlement in Social Studies and we both enjoyed. I thought the writing was very well done and flowed nicely and in keeping with the language of the times. It wasn't super exciting but did give a good feel for what kinds of challenges early explorers faced.

My book is called Bold Journey. A novel by Charles Bohner. Some of the main characters are Jack, Hugh McNeal, sir Lewis , captain Clark, captain Bissell, and Charley. The setting took place from the Ohio River to the Pacific Ocean. There was not really a problem until they ran into Indians. There was a big fight. During the fight Jack and Hugh ran into Charley while powdering up their muskets. They introduced each other to him. After they fled one of the Keelboats sunk. After they found the other Keelboat they also saw the Pacific Ocean a month later. Once they made it the ship mates jumped up and down as if they were drunk. What Charles Bohner is saying is never give up even if your goal seems imposable. If you like adventure I recommend this book because of when they looked for the other keelboat

This is a book that I have been reading to my children ages 5 and 7, and they LOVE it...and I love it too. The language is colorful and complex, the characters are memorable and texture of events or lack of events feel very real. I am hoping to find more historical fiction about Indian history, Lewis and Clark and early settlers. This sure beats reading children's books at bed time...and I am learning a lot too. For example I didn't realize that whiskey was a staple in the army, or that it was 50 below by the Missouri in the winter time, and yet the Mandan Indians would play ball barely clothed with no apparent discomfort. The reader begins to get a feeling for what a ten days journey really is, even if it is a "small" hunting trip. Societal order, fitting in, bullying, choices and personal conduct are all explored by the first person in this story Hugh McNeal.

This book is a very interesting book. It talks about the north-west passage. The explorers are Lewis and Clark and are trying to find the north-west passage. This expedition starts in the north-east where the American and Canadian border is. They wanted to find the passage, instead of going around or above North America. Every night they keep journals of what they find. Everyday they try to find new routes to find the passage. Up and down they go what did they find who knows? Will they ever find the passage? What problems will they run into? I really enjoyed this book!!!!!!

This is a novel of the Lewis and Clark expedition, told in the first person by Pvt. McNeal (the youngest member of the expedition). Your young adventurer experiences the trip, its hazards and beauties, and its incredible difficulties, all told in a clear, memorable story. Outstanding book -- includes a map but no illustrations. For illustrations, try: + "A Picture Biography of Lewis and Clark" by David A. Adler + "Lewis and Clark" by Steven Kroll + "Lewis and Clark and Me" by Laurie Myers + "How We Crossed the West" by Rosalyn Schanzer
